Description

I often hide Audacious to the system tray and I want to restore Audacious' main window without moving mouse cursor to its systray icon.

(It would be nice to have this feature backported to Audacious GTK2 - some of us refuse to run/have GTK3 libraries and some distros simply don't have them).

And also it would be nice to have "Minimize Window/Hide to systray" action.

We have had this feature for some time now. "Toggle player windows" does both of the actions you want.

Thank you! I haven't noticed this action - its name is kinda non-obvious. :)
